Young Wal Eddy was in town from Lundbreck on Saturday. Wal fully explained why he would not vote for or support a candidate in this election sixty years ago. Anyhow, Wal, at 81½, is a good live wire yet. He attended the recent Castle River Stampede, but regretted not getting a chance to lock horns with anybody. Wal was born, brought up and still is a politician of the first (initial) order, and could talk matters with any of 'em. As a fisherman, Wal has seen 'em even bigger than Ike Walton, an 'em when it comes to cookin' 'em, Wal's there! That's all.

A NEW PAPER—"THE BLAIRMORE BUZZ"

We have just received a copy of Volume 1, Edition 1, Number 1, Page 1, of "The Blairmore Buzz," of date July 18, 1944, published by the boys of HMCS Blairmore, London, England.

Following are a few extracts: Forewarning: This is the first newspaper ever published by any ship in the Canadian minesweeping flotilla. Since it's the first, it's the best; but please bear in mind a few of the difficulties under which we labor, namely: (a) all mis-spelled words are dew to our tipperiter, and split infinitives; too; (b) the censor, St. Roger Oakley, still has long sharp scissors. "Facts is facts," he says. Ship-miss-snipping merrily "The fact that was sin't facts no more, cause I'm the censor on the ship Blairmore." Anyway, the Canadian Press seems to convey glowing (??) accounts of our progress, so we don't need to (c) reserved for future development and defects.

Mail: Seventeen bags of mail arrived aboard today, the first in 23 days, with the exception 2 bags a week ago, which was definitely a mistake, we figure. As Davis said when he rushed onto the quarterdeck where the parcels and letters were being sorted, "I'll have some of these and I'll take some of these." You can see how the stuff affects us, so please keep it coming. Pictures of the ship's company arrived in the mail. The one of the Ontario Salts were not included. Naturally, the representatives of the other 8 provinces (I'm from the Gopher Gulch myself) say they were too poor to send, but the Ontarians insist they were too good to send. To make up for the loss, however, Eng. Officer Lieutenant Ward Roderick Hoffman had his picture with a big personal written in the Kitchener Daily Record (that's an Ontario town, not to be confused with Saskatchewan). He doesn't speak to anybody any more.

Sports: The Blairmore ball team (McEwan, Clark, Nix, Borgal, Hoyle, Jamieson, Schlackowsky, Noseworthy, McDonald) and Morris, for umpire, trimmed HMCS XXXXX on an island called XXXXXX with 19 intelligent cows as spectators. The cows were mooring for our side and we were keeping score, so how could we lose. The first lieutenant and Wally Edwards have started a gym, class—skipping ropes and weights from half pound to 200. And then there's the winch for wise guys; and, brother, don't we wish we could!

Food: Our cook, George, outdid himself today. For dinner we had submarine soup (you go down in the sub to find out what's in it), fried chicken, mushrooms, potato chips, lettuce-tomato-cucumber salad, asparagus tips with a side dish of celery hearts and olives, apple pie with ice cream and 3-layer chocolate cake.

The meal was quite good, but the capt. does not like olives and said we were not to have them again. Big food parcels were received today by McEweny, LaFrambois, Dickson and Verrey. Everyone is being nice to them.

Messdeck News: Tommy Young celebrated his one-year-on-the-Blairmore anniversary on the 14th. Little Joey Parr was today promoted from senior OD to junior AB. Buffer Borgal made a good job of repairing the damaged seaboard; but, together with Yeoman Evans, they did not make a good job of sailing same. They paddled back. It's an ill wind that doesn't blow... Yoo!

Poetry:
There was a young lady named Banker
Who slept while the ship lay at anchor.
She awoke with dismay
When she heard Coxswain say:
"Now hoist up the top sheet and spanker."

JOSEPH YILEK PASSES

Another Pass oldtimer passed on on Sunday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Yilek in the person of Joseph Yilek, senior, at the ripe age of 76 years.

Mr. Yilek had been in failing health for some months, and the end was not unexpected. He had been resident of Blairmore and Frank for upwards of thirty years and was very well known. His wife predeceased him about ten years ago. He is survived by two sons, Rudolph in Blairmore and Joseph in Chicago; and two daughters, Mrs. Carney (Vlasta) of Cowley and Mrs. George Wood (Rose) of Frank. Funeral service was held at the Rudolph Yilek residence on Wednesday evening at 5 o'clock, and the remains were laid to rest in the Blairmore Union cemetery.

SULLIVAN-PERRY

The marriage took place in Central United church, Edmonton, recently, of Miss Lillian M. Perry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph W. Perry, of Blairmore, to Pfc. Donald C. Sullivan, USAAF, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Sullivan, of Sidney, Ohio.

The bride wore a white sheer floor-length gown, styled on princess lines and gathered at the neckline. Her hair followed the lines of her dress and was caught to her head with a spray of white flowers. She carried an arm bouquet of red roses.

Mrs. Ella Weimer and Mrs. Robert Shutter, of Houston, Texas, were matrons of honor. They wore blue and pink sheer gowns respectively, and carried bouquets of pink carnations and white sweet peas. Best men were Pfc. Horace L. Smith, of Fort Worth, Texas, and Pfc. Robert L. Shutter.

Pfc. and Mrs. Sullivan will make their home in Edmonton, where the groom is stationed.

The Commons at Ottawa gave third reading to a bill on Monday that makes available to veterans of this war life insurance up to a maximum of $10,000. The bill provides that the veterans be allowed to take the insurance within three years after discharge, or within three years after the war.

Program for us. It begins at 6:55 (so the coxswain says) and ends at 2:30. We get all the good broadcasts like Charlie McCarthy, Jack Benny, Bob Hope, negative advertising and (sob, sob) no soap operas. Please keep us informed, somebody, on the latest instalments of the one where 10 guys are in love with one dame, 'cause their wives don't use Nels Fapcha and get their clothes clean. Spaces to let. For prices apply (match?).

Earl Cameron is the voice listeners hear on the late summary of the day's news, presented over the Trans-Canada network of the CBC at 9 p.m. each day. Mr. Cameron is a news announcer because that's what he wanted to be—and it was almost that simple. He was working in the retail hardware business in Moose Jaw when a CBC talent scout arrived to conduct auditions. Not very long after that, the better business men of Moose Jaw saw one of their best depart for Winnipeg, and later for Toronto. Now, the former hardware authority presents the latest news reports to listeners from coast to coast—including the folks back home in Moose Jaw.

SPOTLIGHT

Singing of romance is one of the Latin American specialties of Alys Robb, French-Canadian radio star, who is currently featured in the variety program, "In the Spotlight," heard Sundays at 6:30 p.m. CDT over CBC's Trans-Canada network.

"FOSS" BOULTON IS WELCOMED AT COLEMAN

Squadron Leader "Foss" Boulton, DFC, famous Canadian flying ace, arrived home to Coleman over the week end, and was given an enthusiastic welcome.

The Coleman flyer, who has written a notable page for himself in air force annals overseas, was met on behalf of the town by Mayor Fred Antrobus and a committee of the Canadian Legion, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Boulton, and many citizens. He was accorded a reception at the home of his parents from 3 to 8 p.m. yesterday.

DRAFTS GAME REGULATIONS

New game regulations for 1944-45 season are under consideration, according to information received by the Alberta Motor Association.

In all probability, the regulations will be issued by the provincial fish and game branch early in August. They will be announced when the necessary order-in-council fixing the seasons, and bag limits and dealing with other regulations is passed by the provincial government.

It is expected that there will be a few changes this year in bag limits and seasons, necessitated by reports as to bird populations, but otherwise it is unlikely that there will be any major revisions from last year's regulations.

A local boy hooked a fish in the Castle River on Sunday last that busted a row $3.50 line and got away. In his estimation, the fish was less than three feet in length and would weigh less than eight pounds. The hooks and leader were saved by the fish.

TOSSES SOCIAL LEGISLATION TO THE CANADIAN PEOPLE

In the House of Commons at Ottawa on July 28th, and before his family allowance bill had won second reading, Prime Minister Mackenzie King is said to have tossed his $200,000,000 social legislation into the next election as an issue on which he demanded judgment of the Canadian people. He made it clear:

First, that parliament will not outlive its statutory life that expires next April. Reaffirming his distaste of extending parliament's life, he repeated his promise of an election before July of next year.

Second, he handed to his party family allowances, effective July 1, 1945, as a spectacular election issue that he declared was beyond the charge of political bribery.

AN AGED AND INTERESTING PROPOSAL OF MARRIAGE

Mr. J. D. North has in his possession a letter written February 26th, 1814, by his grandfather, Mr. R. Stevens, of Munroe, Indiana, to the lady of his choice asking her hand in marriage. The writing is quite legible, though the paper is somewhat yellowed with age.

The weighty question is couched in very philosophical and dignified terms, lacking entirely the exuberance of some of the modern radio reproductions, but we incline to believe just as enduring, though some of the Youth of Today would exclaim, Oh Heck!—Strathmore Standard.

RAIL EMPLOYEES WAGES BOOSTED

Word comes from Ottawa that the National War Labor Board has awarded an increase of six cents an hour in wages to all hourly-rated Canadian railway workers, retroactive to September 15th.

The board's award was made on application by eighteen railway unions for increase of 32 cents an hour in wages of non-operating workers, and levelling of the wages of workers in the running trades to those paid on eastern United States railways. This would mean that engineers now receiving $6.16 per day would receive $8.76, and conductors from $6.25 to $7.08.

OLD AGE AND USEFULNESS

Governor Dewey, of New York, Republican candidate for the presidency of the United States, is 42 years of age. In his acceptance speech before the Republican convention in Chicago he promised, if elected, to replace the "tired old man" at Washington with energetic new blood. A most effective and convincing reply to these remarks was made by Governor Kerr, of Oklahoma, who made the key speech at the convention. He reminded his hearers that it was a tired old man of 65 years—Churchill—who spoke to the people of Britain and the world in the desolate days of the spring of 1940: "We shall fight on the beaches, we shall fight in the fields, we shall fight in the streets, we shall fight in the hills... we shall never surrender"—words which will be treasured by free men all over the world as long as human history lasts.

Men should not be judged by age alone, but by their spirit. Joseph Stalin can by no means be termed a tired old man, nor can Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek; yet their years probably put them in that class. General George Marshall, Admiral King, General Douglas MacArthur, the fighting seamen, Halsey and Mitsui, are all older in years than Franklin Roosevelt, but the energy, courage and ability put them in the top class as fighting men.

The actual fighting on the land, in the air and on the sea is a young man's game, but the contribution old men have made to victory in this war has been outstanding. — Brooks Bulletin.

Humming birds migrate 500 miles without a stop for food or rest.

Major and Mrs. R. L. Williams, who have spent the past four months in Kingston, Ontario, returned to Blairmore on Tuesday of last week. After visiting in Lethbridge, Cardston and Estevan, they will leave for a new posting in Nanaimo, B.C.

The Labor Unity meeting in the Union hall on Wednesday night was fairly well attended. The chair was occupied by Alex. McFegan, and speakers were Tom McCloy, S. G. Bannan and Enoch Williams, candidate.

Mr. Sidney White, who for quite a number of years has been a school teacher in Blairmore, has resigned to accept a post with the school at Creston, B.C. His successor here has not yet been decided upon. Mr. White and family will leave for Creston towards the latter part of this month.

The $1,385,000 Mississippi River bridge at Chester, Illinois, was destroyed by lightning on Tuesday. The bolt struck the centre of the bridge with such terrific force that the span seemed to fold before dropping into the river. Report says no one was on the bridge at the time.

Down in Salt Lake City a department store manager told his employees they will have the day off when Germany surrenders. If the surrender is at night, they needn't come to work the next day. If it's in the daytime, the doors will be locked immediately and business suspended.

Hon. Solon Low, Social Credit national leader, speaking at Medicine Hat on Tuesday night, attacked the family allowances programme as a half-hearted attempt at a national dividend. He claimed it would cost ten times as much to administer children's allowances as it would to follow the simple system of a national dividend as suggested by Social Credit. Premier Manning states that the fight against finance will continue till the battle is won.

Silby Barrett, regional director of the Canadian Congress of Labor, has refused nomination as candidate for board membership in the United Mine Workers of Canada, District 26, in the election to take place in Nova Scotia today. Reason given is that he felt great changes in the coal mining industry would take place in the next two years, and that he could serve the miners better in other ways. Barrett has been board member for eleven years. During his career in the labor field he has held such positions as first district president of District 26, and first district president of the Amalgamated Mine Workers of Nova Scotia, being elected in both cases in 1917.

Premier Manning said in a provincial election campaign address on Saturday that "in this election we want a clear-cut decision—we want none of this narrow margin business. On August 8th there must be no shadow of doubt as to what the people want. Imported voices were being brought in, and Albertans should be careful in the vote decisions they make. We have come to the time when we must not be influenced by mud-slinging of petty politicians. Let's try and keep our public life on the high plane it should be on. Misleading propaganda is being peddled about our resources. Any man who says that we have given away all our natural resources is either false or ignorant. We have never given away any resources, and don't intend to do so."

Colonial Progress

FOR ALMOST FIVE YEARS the greater part of the resources of the British Empire have been required for purposes of war. This has been regarded as a regrettable necessity by the people of the Empire for with them, as with the people of all enlightened nations, the urge towards construction and social progress is strong. This is clearly shown by the fact that even while putting their maximum effort into the prosecution of the war, they have at the same time been laying carefully thought out plans for post-war reconstruction. Because of the war, many projects for social improvements have had to be postponed, but it is encouraging to learn that in spite of this, the British government has been able to successfully carry on what has been called "a fight for colonial progress". Under the terms of the Colonial Welfare and Development Act, an earnest attempt is being made to raise the standard of living and improve the status of the colonies in Africa, the West Indies and the Far East.

Standards Of Health Raised

The greatest enemies of colonial progress are said to be disease, ignorance and poverty. Of these, disease is considered to be the most detrimental, and great efforts have been made by the British government to improve the health standards in colonial territories. To accomplish this, modern hospitals have been established in populated areas, while "bush clinics" have been organized to serve people in remote districts. Much of the difficulty in connection with public health lies in the general lack of knowledge regarding preventative measures against tropical diseases, and as a result efforts have been made to familiarize the people with this subject, and to educate them in modern methods of building, food conservation and the safe guarding of drinking water.

Agriculture Is Chief Industry

The chief industry in most of the colonies is agriculture, and arrangements have been made to acquaint the farmers with the most modern methods of cultivation, as well as to assist them in the sale of their produce. In the realm of education, a drive has been made against ignorance and illiteracy. New schools are being built, teacher training facilities extended and a system for adult education has been established. A recent article published by the British Ministry of Information says in this connection: "It is the object of the British people to assist the people of the colonies to achieve the highest possible standard of living, combined with as much self-government as they are ready for, with the object that in time the trusteeship should develop into a full partnership within the Empire."

MARRIAGE AND HOMEMAKING

"Young women all over the country feel that the educational system should be extended to include a course to fit them for marriage and homemaking," Jean Hall, executive of the program department, National Council of the Y.W.C.A., said in an interview.

Miss Hall based her statement on resolutions passed at Y.W.C.A. regional conferences held in Western Canada in the past two months and similar conferences held in Ontario and Quebec.

"The majority of girls consider marriage and motherhood a career requiring the same education and training as any other career," Miss Hall said. "They have no desire to drift into it when they tire of their jobs."

Other things young women hope for, according to Miss Hall, are more co-ed recreation, improved housing and welfare conditions, equal pay for equal work, higher standards for domestic workers, preference to former service men in new industries, and old-age pensions at 60 years.

TOO SUGGESTIVE

Immediately after announcing the assassination attempt against Hitler, the German radio substituted music for its next scheduled program. The cancelled program was a lecture entitled "Extermination of Rats".

Price Control And Rationing Information

Q—How long are rationing sugar coupons valid, and must five be cashed in at a time?

A—Canning sugar coupons are valid until declared invalid, and consumers will be notified well in advance of the date. It is not valid until all fresh fruits are off the market. Canning sugar coupons may be cashed in one at a time, or in whatever quantity suits your needs.

A—Yes, shoe repair shops may now place full leather soles on children's shoes up to size three. Previous to this repair shops were only allowed to place half soles on shoes. Loggers' boots may also be fully soled.

Q—I am a farmer's wife and have several customers in town who purchase butter from me. Must I collect their butter coupons?

A—Yes, it is necessary for you to collect the butter coupons and then turn them over to your local ration board. Some people have been destroying the coupons which they have collected for butter sold to their customers, but this should not be done. The coupons must be turned over to the local ration board.

Q—If I do not wish to make use of my rationing sugar coupons, may I exchange them for preserve coupons?

A—Yes, you may exchange your rationing sugar coupons for preserve coupons at your local ration board. One preserves coupon will be given for each rationing sugar coupon.

Please send your questions or your request for the pamphlet "Consumer News" to the Enterprise Book (the book in which you keep track of your rationing prices) mentioning the name of this paper to the nearest Wartime Prices and Trade Board office in your province.

A Greek Lidice

Village Wiped Out in Reprisal For Thirty Germans Killed

In the shadow of Mount Parnassus from whose summit Apollo and the Muses made their journey to civilized living, there existed until very recently the village of Lidice. It had enjoyed its hour of fame, more than that of any other village in the world, when it was the scene of a terrible Greek victory during the Greek war of independence. It had survived its hour of defeat, when the German avalanche rolled down from the north.

Early in June thirty Germans were killed near Lidice in a clash with partisans of the Hellenic Liberation Front. The next day the town was surrounded by Nazi Elite Guards. With systematic thoroughness, the entire population of 1,000 souls was herded into the square. When the Red Cross got there several days later, they found only charred ruins and a few half-mad children roaming in the woods.

The Germans themselves through their puppets in Athens vouch for this story. They point out that Lidice was destroyed on the second anniversary of the massacre at Lidice. This time there was no Reinhard Heydrich, no butchering "protector" of Bohemia-Moravia, whose assassination furnished a pretext for the mass murder of innocent people. This time the women and children were not sent away but slaughtered with the men. It was intended as a lesson for the Greeks of the futility of their struggle. It served instead as a lesson for all who are still learning, painfully and incredulously, the full meaning of Nazi barbarity. Like the lesson taught at Lidice, it will be taken to heart.—New York Times.

Epic Flight

One Engine Carries A Canadian In Mosquito Over 700-Mile Jungle

FO. Jack Winship, 28, former Winnipeg bus driver, flew his Mosquito photographic reconnaissance plane home on one engine recently over 700 miles of Japanese-held Indochina jungle, it was disclosed.

The cooling system of the port engine failed and Winship cut it off, losing 6,000 feet of altitude while preparing for emergency landing. To keep the remaining altitude he jettisoned 100 gallons of precious fuel.

Winship trained at High River, Alta., and Dauphin, Man. He was accompanied on the flight by R.A.F. FO. Peter Haines, of London.

FLOATING KITCHENS

Among the many types of British landing craft are certain barges fitted out as floating kitchens, known as L.B.K.s. They are ships specially designed for this operation and provide hot meals for the crews of the smaller landing craft.—Journal of Commerce (London).

Registered Cattle Sale

Malcolm McGregor, Of Brandon, Sold 81 Head At Good Prices

A successful auction sale of Registered Polled Angus cattle, was held by Mr. Malcolm McGregor, at the Exhibition grounds at Brandon, Man. There were 81 head of cattle sold at an average price of $298.48. These consisted of 10 bulls at an average price of $218.80, and 71 females, averaging $307.50. The price paid for the top bull, Unity Domino End 9th, 105744, was $510.00. The price paid for the top female, Domino Lassie 5th, 100245, was $750.00. Freddy Brown, of Portage la Prairie, Man., were the purchasers of the top bull. Howard Stephens, of Wawanesa, Man., purchased the top price female. The weather conditions on the day of the sale were excellent, and about 300 people were in attendance.

John Mason Friday, of Hawley, Minn., U.S.A., purchased ten head at $285.00, the top price being $400.00. W. Babcock, of Wallaceburg, Ont., purchased eight lots at $270.00, the top price being $550.00. Ray Emmett, of Calving, North Dakota, secured seven lots at $250.00, top price being $500.00. Denver J. Rosberg, of Washburn, North Dakota, bought four lots at $1,300, paying top price of $350.00. E. Moore & Son, Telford, Alberta, bought three lots at $350.00, top price being $450. One bull went to D. I. Cobb, of St. Croix Falls, Wisconsin.

The general average price was very satisfactory. The demand for bulls was poor, but there was a strong demand for females. More cattle could have been sold at satisfactory prices.

Good Scout

This Boy's Mother Showed The Qualities Necessary

Everything about them was spick and span. Even the tomahawk, which one carried strapped to his haversack, gleamed. It had been sharpened to a razor edge by his father.

His mother stood, smiling, at the gate. The son stepped up to her, kissed her, turned away smartly and marched off with his companions.

The boy did not see his mother's lips twitching as she watched him stride away. She said nothing. She, too, could be a good scout.

After the three figures had passed out of sight mother went to a doctor, who stitched a gash in her hand which her son's swinging tomahawk had made as he turned away.—Australian News-Letter.

THE FURIST

The West still has a reputation for being wild and woolly, but Cpl. Belle Wall, of Trail, B.C., presently working in an Ordinary Room at Currie Barracks in Calgary, is doing her best to civilize the staff. Cpl. Wall's chief weapon is a tin tobacco can noticeably labelled "Swear Box"—donations gratefully received. It costs money to swear when Cpl. Wall is around because each time she hears an "off" word she marches over to the culprit, shakes the box under his nose and collects five cents. Just what constitutes a swear word is a matter of much argument. "Hell," insists the Sergeant-Major, "isn't a swear word, it's a town in Norway."

ITALY—

The eighteen C.W.A.C. girls who recently landed in Italy for operational duty did not waste time on the transport which carried them from the United Kingdom. Under the tutelage of their Commanding Officer, Capt. Cynthia Oakley of Toronto, who before the war studied Italian in Florence, the girls picked up a good working knowledge of the language of the country to which they were destined. According to word received from Italy, the pupil who made the best headway with the lingo was Cpl. Betty Cosar of Winnipeg, while in a dead heat for close second were two Saint John, N.B., lassies, Sgt. Jean Campbell and Pte. Margaret Keefe.

Victoria Hospital

In Toronto was notified recently that "Pte. H. E. Banting, medical student, would be returning to the port in the next few days for training as an intern. Pte. Banting is Lady Banting, widow of Sir Frederick Banting, co-discoverer of the insulin treatment for diabetes, who was killed in a plane crash early in the war, while making a flight to England in connection with research work for the R.A.F. She enrolled as a medical student at the University of Toronto after Sir Frederick's death and is now in her final year in medicine.

RECRUIT—

From the jungles of the African Congo, a new recruit has come to join the ranks of Canada's Women's Army Corps. He is "Peter," a leopard whose skin is now touring the Dominion with the C.W.A.C. Military Band. Donated by the citizens of Peterborough, Ont., "Peter" lives up to the best military traditions which have dictated the wearing of leopard skins by drummers since the days when the drummers were Negro slaves from the jungle. "Peter" has been presented to the Corps Pipe Band by the citizens of Lethbridge, Alta., last summer.

LARGE GROUND FORCE

SMILE AWHILE

Naval Officer: "Yes, I spent last leave at a seaside hotel."

A woman motorist was driving along a country road when she saw a couple of repair men climbing telephone poles.

"Idiot!" she said to her companion. "Do they think I never drove a car before?"

"Why do these lightning regulations worry you so much?"

Officer: "I suppose you'd like a commission?"

Applicant: "No thanks. I'm such a poor shot I'd rather work on a straight salary."

In answer to a German's "Hoff, Hitler!" a Dutchman replied, "Hoff, Rembrandt! Hoff, Rembrandt!"

"What do you mean?" asked the German.

"Well," said the Dutchman, "he's our best painter."

Old Gent—What are you crying for, my little man?

Old Gent—That is surely nothing to cry about. I should have thought that you would have laughed.

Willie—I did!

Everybody in the club was agreed on one subject—the hard-heartedness of Mrs. Stoneleigh, the local sportsman's lady.

"Ay," said one, "it was a sorry day for many when she was born."

"Born!" snorted another. "You mean quarried!"

The bandmaster was approached by one of his company when the country tour started. "Shall we be having any week-end performances?" the man asked.

"Oh, yes, a number."

"I'm glad of that. I never know what to do with my week-end."

"Oh, why not keep your hat on it?"

Germany Now Prepares For A Total War

LONDON.—Propaganda Minister Goebbels outlined a program for a stepped-up German war effort and urged the battered German nation to rally around Hitler and "fight and work" to overcome "the present difficult times when almost the entire world is storming against us."

In an effort to reassure the German public, shaken by the recent historic events, Goebbels promised once more that a secret weapon soon would be used against the Allies, declared "Total war will now become a reality" and said "next month" would begin to show results at the front, where Nazi armies have been suffering defeat after defeat.

Speaking over the Berlin radio in his new role as Reich plenipotentiary for total mobilization under Marshal Goering, Goebbels gave what he said was the full story of the revolt of the Junkers generals and the attempt to assassinate Hitler.

Britain, Russia and the United States had a hand in the generals' conspiracy, he asserted.

The story in the main conformed to that already told, beginning with Hitler's own version, but added that the attempt on Hitler's life was made at his headquarters "just before noon, during his daily discussion of the war situation," and the plotters were tried immediately and executed. Goebbels declared that Heinrich Himmler, Gestapo chief newly named commander-in-chief of the army at home, had been ordered to "re-organize" the whole German reserve army and move reserves at home to the front.

"Total war," he continued, "will make available to the fronts and to war production so much manpower that it will not be too difficult to master the difficulties of the war situation."

Although he said it was "yet too early" to make known the full details of his program, Goebbels disclosed that Himmler would draft more men, create a new reserve pool and train and equip "many divisions," and that War Production Chief Albert Speer had "devised methods to intensify production."

Would Avoid Price Decline In Farm Products

OTTAWA.—Continuation of the wartime system of handling agricultural products through various boards, if action is necessary to avoid a serious price decline after the war, will be the main feature of the scheme for supporting farm prices worked out by the department of agriculture, an authoritative explanation disclosed.

A resolution authorizing establishment of floor prices for farm products, "during the transition from war to peace," was approved by the house, on motion of Agriculture Minister J. G. Gardiner. Text of the bill which the house will be asked to pass is not available, but it will contain provision for a board of three members to administer the act.

The level at which the price floor will be established has not been decided. It will be recommended to the government by the board, but it is expected to bear some relationship with the present price ceiling. In other words, the future farm prices maintained for the Canadian farmer will not be allowed to decline below a certain percentage of the price levels enjoyed during the war. The board will not control prices directly, but will influence the market by buying and selling. Precedent for this system is seen in the Canadian Wheat Board and in other boards handling farm products, such as the old bacon board and the present meat board. The board may buy and sell directly, or through agencies, and the wheat board is expected to be one of the agencies used. The section of the bill conferring on the board powers to buy and sell will come into effect by proclamation at some future date.

MADE IN CANADA

Royal Navy Gunners' Devices Supplied By C.R.R. Angus Shops

MONTREAL.—Highly specialized royal navy gunners' devices which were used by warships and auxiliary ships in the Normandy invasion and in sea service before that were made at the Angus shops of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company here on a million dollar contract which ended in July. It is now permissible to reveal. Other work for the navy still is proceeding in the munitions department of the huge east-end shop with the exact details being withheld by the censor.

The gunners' devices, on which the cloak of secrecy imposed for security reasons has now been lifted, are rangefinder directors, director control towers and range transmission units which are especially effective in sea fighting against ships and fast moving planes. They cost from $4,300 to $48,500 each.

The first naval fire control unit was turned out of Angus shops in the darkest days of the Battle of the Atlantic at the same time as a contract was going forward there to make more than 1,400 Valentine tanks for the Russians.

The entire naval fire control order was for $1,162,000 for 120 units with the last of them to be delivered before the first of August.

PRACTICAL ACCORDS

Gen. De Gaulle Is Hopeful Regarding Collaboration

ALGIER.—Gen. Charles de Gaulle told the French consulate assembly that he hoped for the conclusion soon of practical accords with Britain and America regarding the collaboration of the French administration and Allied armies on liberated territory. De Gaulle addressed the assembly in his first public statement since he returned from the United States.

"There is a notable bond of common interest between France and England," he said. "With the United States our friendship is at the same time reasoned and instinctive. He paid tribute to Russia's "gigantic role" in the war and spoke of the cordiality of his talks with Canadian government leaders and those of refugee governments in London.

MOVE NORTH

American Headquarters To Be Transferred To Whitehorse

EDMONTON.—Headquarters of the northwest service command will be moved from Edmonton to Whitehorse in the Yukon Territory within the next 60 days. The announcement was made at Edmonton by Colonel F. S. Strong, Jr., commanding officer of the N.W.S.C.

A year echelon office will be maintained in Edmonton for liaison with the Canadian authorities and the Alaskan wing of the American army's air transport command.

The total strength of the northwest service command will be considerably reduced, Strong said.

PACIFIC INVASION

PEARL HARBOR.—American forces have stormed almost a mile inland on Tinian and captured the western third of the island's main airstrip, while in another invasion of the Marianas at Guam, 125 miles to the south, they have isolated another major airstrip and are hammering at the approaches to Agaña, capital of the former United States possession.

WHEAT STOCKS

Estimated World Stocks Show A Sharp Decline From A Year Ago

WASHINGTON.—Estimated wheat stocks in the four principal exporting countries were estimated by the agriculture department to have declined from 1,748,000,000 bushels on July 1, 1943, to 1,170,000,000 on July 1 of this year.

A review prepared by the foreign agricultural relations division of the department said the decline of 578,000,000 bushels is the greatest in any single year on record. It said the decline resulted from smaller 1943 wheat harvests in the four countries and from the demand for wheat for non-food purposes.

The division estimated the stocks for this year compared with those for last year were: United States 350,000,000 bushels and 620,000,000 bushels; Canada 375,000,000 and 620,000,000; Argentina, 285,000,000 and 307,000,000; and Australia 160,000 and 195,000,000.

The review said the United States drew heavily on Canadian wheat stock and predicted the disappearance of stocks in Canada is expected to reach a record figure of 191,000,000 bushels.

GONE INTO ACTION

Four Canadian Battalions Which Fought At Dieppe

LONDON.—Disclosure that four Canadian battalions which fought at Dieppe on Aug. 19, 1942, are serving in Normandy is an indication that part at least of the Canadian 2nd Division has gone into action.

The units which Ross Munro, Canadian Press war correspondent, was permitted to name in a despatch from Normandy are all 2nd Division battalions. They are:

The Queen's Own Cameron Highlanders of Winnipeg.

The Essex Scottish Regiment of Windsor, Ont.

The South Saskatchewan Regiment.

Les Fusiliers Mont-Royal.

"Viva, Le General", Greets Montgomery

General Sir Bernard Montgomery, commander of Allied invasion forces, attended church services in the Church of St. Etienne in Caen after the fall of the French city to British and Canadian troops. ### British Comedy Star

Britain's new wartime comedy star, Anna Russell, is flying to Western Canada late this week to appear at the Prince Albert, Saskatchewan Exhibition on August 10, 11, and 12. Miss Russell switched from a successful career early in the war when an emergency resulted in her doing some comedy numbers for a troop show in Britain. Her favourite music is grand opera — "Because it's so corny."

Heavy Losses By Germans On Russian Front

LONDON.—Moscow announced in a special broadcast communiqué that the Germans had lost 539,890 men in killed and captured during the first month of fighting in the summer offensive of four Russian armies on the first Baltic and first, second and third White Russian fronts.

From June 23, when the great summer drive toward Germany began, until July 25, these four armies accounted for a toll of 381,410 Germans killed, Moscow said.

In addition, 158,480 officers and men were taken prisoner, the communiqué said.

The Russians made no estimate of the number of Nazi soldiers wounded during the month's campaign, but enumerated enormous amounts of vital war equipment captured during the offensive.

In main types of equipment the special communiqué said the Germans had lost, either by destruction or capture, 631 aircraft; 2,635 tanks and self-propelled guns; 8,602 guns of other types; 5,695 mortars; 23,071 machine-guns; and 57,152 trucks.

In addition, Moscow listed as captured 89,018 rifles and tommyguns; 85 locomotives; 6,389 railway freight cars; 31,440 horses; 11,999 carts loaded with freight; 712 tractors; 437 motorcycles; 1,395 dumps containing ammunition, equipment, supplies and food; and 595 radio transmitters.

SERVING IN FORCES

LONDON.—There are now 63 M.P.'s serving in the British armed forces other than the Home Guard.

Canadian Navy May See Action In The Pacific

OTTAWA.—Canadian naval doctors have started to study tropical diseases and ship air conditioning on the assumption that the Royal Canadian Navy will participate in force in the fight against Japan, a reliable source said. However, he made it clear that the role of the navy in the Pacific will not be decided until the European war reaches a final stage.

Part of the Canadian navy is dependent on that of the Royal Navy and the British, concentrating on the European war, have given Pacific naval operations only minor attention as yet, the source said.

He spoke of a popular opinion held in United States naval circles that they would like to finish the Pacific war themselves.

"By next year they will have a navy more powerful than that of all other Allied fleets combined and a personnel of 3,000,000 and I don't think they would have much trouble in finishing the job," he continued.

He said the U.S. carrier fleet—so vital in Pacific island warfare—has greatly outranked that of any other nation in strength.

However, he added, he felt that the United States government would readily agree with the desirability of welcoming powerful British and Canadian forces in that area.

"Frankly they feel it's a grudge fight and sort of a matter of national pride to clean up the Japs themselves in revenge for Pearl Harbor," he continued.

He said the British feel they must redeem the loss of prestige suffered when Hong Kong and Singapore fell.

The Canadian navy, closely identified with Royal Navy and outfitted similarly, would probably accompany the British fleet to the Pacific when it transfers its full might there.

However, the source said the case might arise where light Canadian escorts would see duty with heavy American craft and his own part he would welcome this co-operation.

He added he believed that when British naval forces move they will go through the Mediterranean to bases possibly at Ceylon and Australia, with the object of re-taking Burma and the Malay peninsula.

"No decision has yet been taken, but I'm almost sure you will see the combined British and Canadian naval forces based in the Indian ocean," he added.

COMING WEST

Miss Russell, Sensational British Comedienne, Likes Western Canada

TORONTO.—"I love grand opera because it's so corny. I love Western Canada—I was in Edmonton last year—because the people out there have a sense of humour. I don't know anyone who can be as frosty-faced as a Torontonian."

These were some of the statements made by Anna Russell, the sensational new British wartime comedy star as she prepared to leave here by plane late this week for Prince Albert, Sask., where she will make personal appearances and perform at the Prince Albert Exhibition on Aug. 10, 11 and 12.

Miss Russell was one of Britain's rising young concert and opera stars until an accidental circumstance switched her to comedy early in the war. Before that she had played before royalty, the late King George V and Queen Mary and on another occasion before the Duke of Windsor, then Prince of Wales.

Because she felt it her patriotic duty her husband is an officer with the British army in Normandy she joined a variety show entertaining the troops early in the war. One night the show's comedian, didn't turn up. "Do a song and do it funny," shouted the show manager. Miss Russell did it "so funny" that she's been doing it ever since and has collected compliments from the largest newspapers in Britain, Canada and the United States.

Deeply interested in Canada and its possibilities, Miss Russell believes the West will see its greatest expansion accompanying a post-war immigration boom. "Already with only a comparatively small population look at the initiative and enterprise they show out there," she said. "What can't they do with a few million more people to keep industry and agriculture humming."

Modern Homes

IN A "SUMMER RESORT" TOWN!

THE typical worker's home in Powell River district is attractive in design, is well built and has well kept lawns, flower and vegetable gardens. Conveniences and services usually associated with much larger cities are also enjoyed. These include light water, telephone and various delivery services. Moreover, many of these modern homes, located on terraces well above sea level, enjoy expansive views of the Gulf of Georgia and Malaspina Straits, surrounded by numerous beaches, woodland slopes and beautiful lakes. For single and unattached men there is also an efficiently run boarding house. To live in Powell River or one of its three adjacent villages is just like staying at a summer resort, except that you live here all the year round. Lawns and shade trees surround these homes, where happy children thrive in the mild climate, attend one of several good schools. Join youth training groups, go to the movies, play sports the year round, just as they would in the best equipped city. All this is possible because people who live and work at Powell River have steady year-round jobs at good wages. The standard of living is high—the cost of living comparatively low. Light water and tax rates compare well with larger centres.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

The Green Bottle

By
FRANK H. BENNETT
McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Pat Martin was supposed to be steering the boat, but his eyes were fixed on the girl he loved. Why, he wondered, must he be like a tongue-tied, hapless kid when he was with her? Why couldn't he take those soft slender fingers in his and tell her that her hair was like ebony, that her eyes carried the haunting mystery of a starlit night, that she was lovely and sweet, and that he loved her?

The light evening breeze caught at the sail and the boat thrashed through the water. In the distance the gray haze of the Florida coast loomed like a cloud.

Ralph Thomas, sunlight full on his tanned face, his long legs stretched out before him, lay lazily back against the cushions in the bow. He was a good looking fellow with straight black hair and flashing dark eyes. And he was the kind who could tell Lou how beautiful she was, Pat knew.

Ralph dipped his hand into the water. "Just right for a swim." "Keep your hands out of the water," Pat warned. "The place is swarming with barracudas. They move with the speed of lightning and their bite is like a buzz-saw."

Ralph shuddered. "They heard of 'em," he said. "Get to be six feet long and they're more vicious than sharks."

"Look," Lou said suddenly, "isn't that a bottle?"

"I believe it is," said Ralph. With a swift twist of the rudder Pat turned the boat and Ralph scooped up the bottle. It was long and slender—muddy-green in color. A cork was tightly driven into the mouth.

Ralph held it up to the sun. Can't see through it," he observed.

"Always a wet blanket," Ralph chided.

"It may be from a ship lost at sea," Lou's voice was soft, her eyes suddenly dreamy. "A sailor, knowing he was about to die, wrote a last message to his sweetheart, telling her how much he loved her."

Ralph's eyes were on the girl's lovely face. "And his sweetheart is the most beautiful girl in the world," he said slowly, "with hair that shines like polished ebony in the sun. And her eyes are dark and lovely, and her lips are like rose petals."

Lou flushed. "Very pretty said," she laughed. Ralph opened his penknife and began to pry at the cork.

"Let me be the first to open it," Lou begged.

"Yes, my lady," Ralph said. He tossed the long green bottle toward her, but his aim was poor, and the bottle went high. Lou, jumping up to catch it, stumbled and toppled into the water. She went under, but was up in a flash, her eyes seeking the boat.

Fear for her choked Pat. The great barracuda! The girl seemed to realize her danger. Her face was white against the deep blue of the water. She kept her head, and instead of drifting out for the receding boat, moved only enough to keep her nose above water. Then before Pat could stop him, Ralph was out of his shoes and over the side of the boat, swimming with long splashing strokes toward the girl.

Pat, his heart paralyzed with terror, swung the boat toward them. It seemed hours before he reached them. He pulled Lou in first, then helped Ralph over the gunwale. "Lucky, both of you," he panted. He turned fiercely on Ralph. "You shouldn't have jumped in and made all that noise. You know she can swim and that she was in no danger of drowning."

Ralph flushed angrily. "Do you think I would sit in the boat like a lump? Where I come from, we don't act that way."

Lou laughed a little nervously. "Really, Ralph, it wasn't at all necessary for you to come after me."

He found her hand and pressed it. "It seemed necessary to me," he said quietly.

Lou smiled up at his eyes, and Pat looked straight ahead toward the nearing shore. Why, he wondered, couldn't he say the right thing at the right time?

The next day Pat went down to the beach, gloomily thinking about Lou and the way she looked at Ralph. And then he spied the green bottle. It had forgotten about it when Lou had fallen into the water, and now, here it was, washed ashore.

It took him but a minute to remove the cork—and, just as he had predicted, it was empty. And then he saw Lou, a white dress whipping about her slender body, her ebony hair gleaming, coming along the beach. He sighed deeply. In a minute she would be alone with him. Why couldn't he tell her how he felt about her? But he couldn't—or couldn't he?

Lou came up to him, smiling. "Hello, Pat." She dropped down on the sand beside him; then quickly started to her feet. "Look!" she cried. "There's the green bottle!"

She pointed to the water's edge and came back with the long slim bottle. "I'd forgotten all about it," she went on excitedly. "Oh, Pat, what do you suppose is in it?"

The cork slipped out easily. Lou turned the bottle over, and a tightly rolled piece of paper fell into her lap. She smoothed it out and read the hurriedly scrawled lines. A sudden glow came into her dark eyes.

"A male quivered on her lips. 'Pat, you old fraud!' she said. 'But the answer is yes.'"

He kissed her then, and they read the note together. It said, "Your eyes are like the star-lit night, and you're lovely and sweet, and I love you, Lou. Will you marry me?"

Pat.

Defies The Sea

Engineers Used Peculiar Method
When Building Breakwater

Cherbourg's breakwater, last night of which I had from the now lamented Empress of Britain before the war, owed much of its strength to a peculiar natural factor.

The French, ever resourceful, harnessed the muscles of the sea to their construction. Mussels abound on the Normandy coast, and spin what is known as byssus, or a fine silk-like strand formed by the mussel into a kind of string.

The strings of all the mussels join up into a rope and form a mussel-mat so secure that not even the strongest sea can shift it.

When the breakwater was being built the ingenious French engineers put thousands of mussels on loosely piled stones, knowing that the byssus would bind them together more strongly than any cement.

This method certainly helped to make the breakwater a worthy challenger of the sea's most violent mood.—London Daily Sketch.

Back In Canada

Sgt. R. D. "Muscles" Hadwyn, Lindsay, Ont., enlisted in the R.C.A.F. when he was just 15 years old. That was two years ago. Today he is back in Canada, a fuzzy-cheeked veteran with one Messerschmitt confirmed and one Focke-Wulf probable to his credit. Started R.C.A.F. officials caught up with him just after D-Day and hustled him back to Canada, where he must remain until he reaches 18 years of age. With 18 operations, against German targets and others in occupied Europe as a blackleg of experience, Sgt. Hadwyn will serve as a gunnery instructor. He said he was given the nickname "Muscles" for the same reason that big men are called "Tiny"—he hasn't got any. Sgt. Hadwyn doesn't feel very happy about having to wait six months before he can go back on operations, but is determined to work hard so that there won't be any delay when he is once more eligible for aircrew duties.

RECAP. Photo. Sgt. R. D. "Muscles" Hadwyn, Lindsay, Ont., enlisted in the R.C.A.F. when he was just 15 years old. That was two years ago. Today he is back in Canada, a fuzzy-cheeked veteran with one Messerschmitt confirmed and one Focke-Wulf probable to his credit. Started R.C.A.F. officials caught up with him just after D-Day and hustled him back to Canada, where he must remain until he reaches 18 years of age. With 18 operations, against German targets and others in occupied Europe as a blackleg of experience, Sgt. Hadwyn will serve as a gunnery instructor. He said he was given the nickname "Muscles" for the same reason that big men are called "Tiny"—he hasn't got any. Sgt. Hadwyn doesn't feel very happy about having to wait six months before he can go back on operations, but is determined to work hard so that there won't be any delay when he is once more eligible for aircrew duties.

Princess Margaret Rose Visits School
That Bears Her Name

Princess Margaret, who will be 14 in August, made her first public appearance on her own when she visited the Princess Margaret Rose school at Windsor, England.

Wearing a dress of pink cotton with short white sleeves and a wide trimmed hat of natural straw, she received presents from 25 girls and old girls of the school in aid of the rebuilding fund.

The Queen watched her daughter receive each purse with a smile and a "thank you," and heard her announce that the equivalent to $1,000 had been collected.

The princess said in a firm clear voice that she was very glad to be able to make her first visit to the school which bears her name. "I wish the school and each pupil every possible success."

Post-War And The Farmer

SAVING AND PLANNING BIG NEED NOW

By Q. H. Martinson

(Note—This is the first of a series of comments by well known prairie authorities, who are writing for the Weekly Press of Western Canada.)
Foresighted farmers over the Dominion are trying to figure out whether their voluntary and involuntary savings in the past years will serve them adequately through the period of uncertainty in the initial post-war years.

A summary of the views of a fair sample of prairie farmers, given in necessary protection, believe this to be the case. They cite the retention of price ceilings on consumer goods and a cushion or shock-absorber through the maintenance of adequate floor prices as necessary protection to enable them to secure a fair share of the national income.

Farm income is at a higher level than ever before. This is confirmed by several facts. A very large number of farmers are now able to pay income tax; farm mortgage indebtedness is at its lowest level in decades and inflation has been brided to a far greater degree than even the most optimistic ever anticipated.

Admittedly farmers' savings are largely due to the inability to obtain normal replacements, repairs, etc. No one can suggest that all surplus money held by farmers today is profit. A good share must be classed as replacement and depreciation reserve. Many of the farmers' requirements will be urgent necessities as soon as the war ends and supplies are made available. However, this should not suggest a rush to purchase on an unprecedented scale.

Those who plan to cover their requirements for other needs over a period of three to five years after the war ends, will undoubtedly benefit from more favorable cost prices through the increased production of the things they must buy.

Planned and systematic buying over a period of years after the war ends will alleviate any unexpected inconveniences and depression periods that may occur. The producer who enters into a buying spree as soon as the opportunity presents itself, partly through necessity and also to completely eliminate the enforced inconveniences of years will find himself in a very vulnerable position in the event of any adverse conditions arising in the post-war period.

Western agriculture is on a sounder financial basis today than for many years. The gross income from farm products is at an all-time high, and is supplemented by other revenues, including payments on wheat participation certificates covering the past three crop years and totalling almost $80,000,000, wheat acreage reduction payments, etc.

There are indications that the price of farm lands in Western Canada are increasing. Yet, the farmer who has made definite plans for the future is making a cautious study of farm land prices. First, he is asking himself—do I need more land? Secondly, will this additional acreage, over a period of years, return sufficient income to support my family and meet payments on the present purchase price? Thirdly, will the post-war demand for farm products justify this expenditure?

The producer who is planning definitely for the future is living his financial musts in the order that he can be most conveniently obtained. He is planning to guard against the various hazards encountered in farming and realizes that the Western farmer economy in the past never permitted him to practice soil conservation. He is looking to the security of his family and providing financial independence in his declining years.

Through saving now and by careful planning for the future he sees the possibility of brighter prospects of remaining on a sound financial basis for many years. The possibility of securing some of the modern conveniences of life that in the past have been out of his reach, is seen in the offing.

Many men and women, well past middle age, who are carrying on a wartime job in agriculture today are anxious to retire when the war ends and will have to depend largely on their savings from income in war years. Others are approaching that stage, and thousands now in the armed forces and war industries will seek rehabilitation in agricultural industry.

The larger the amount of surplus money that can be classed by the individual farmer as savings in connection with a long range post-war financial program strengthens his own security, and in addition, provides for a greater distribution of employment for the benefit of all.

The Grave Digger

The Man Responsible For The Utter
Mass Destruction Of The Reich

The final assault on the Reich is on and the last attack to bring Hitler's edict to the ground has begun. The man responsible for the utter defeat of Germany is Adolf Hitler. He has the mass distinction of having brought a once prosperous country to black ruin, a ruin so complete as to include every man, woman and child from the Baltic to the Italian frontier, and from the Belgian frontier to the Polish border.

After the Kaiser had lost the war of 1918 Germany was defeated but the interior of the Reich still stood. Homes were intact, communications were unharmed, factories were undestroyed, and people were living where they always had lived.

Today millions of Germans are working in parts of the country unknown to them, families are separated, bombarded from Cologne are in East Prussia, those from Hamburg in Bavaria. Whole towns are in ruins, complete factories have disappeared, private businesses have ceased to exist, tens of thousands of shops, publishers, theatres, hotels, mail factories, have been closed down. Total war has lead to total defeat.

The leading Swiss newspaper, the Neue Zürcher Zeitung, printed on May 23 a sober, balanced account of conditions "behind the enemy lines" by a Swiss just returned from Germany. The details add up to an impressive picture of decline:

"Books, furniture, and luxury goods are practically unobtainable. Even brushes, gloves, saucers, crockery, knives, forks, and dishcloths are rarities. . . Any repairs which the householder cannot undertake himself, no matter how small, become lengthy affairs of state; it often takes weeks of despatches to get the services of a mechanic. . . Even towns spared by the air war begin to look run down."

A whole book could be written about the bombed cities, according to this Swiss reporter, who has visited a great many in western and northern Germany.

"The once busy streets are deserted. The traffic that formerly pulsed through them is reduced to a mere trickle. . . There is hardly any life left in the ruins and one doubts whether it will ever return as before. . .

"The state takes care of the people that have been bombed out and of the evacuees as well as it can, but its facilities are of course limited. Since complete compensation within a reasonable time is impossible, those who have lost everything are 'declassified' in the true sense of the word. The authorities issue purchase vouchers for clothes and household articles, but the time is long past when people could be sure of obtaining something with them. The destruction of material goods has become so great that German industry, already overstrained, cannot possibly satisfy the demand. The glass industry is unable to replace broken windows; hence hundreds of thousands have to live and work in cold rooms. Transportation in the bombed cities is difficult and very slow."

"The power of resistance has been gradually weakened. Air war does not break down resistance at one stroke but wears it down gradually. The excitement of the raids and fear of death finally leave their mark even on healthy people. 'Life becomes one dreadful makeshift. . . everybody gets nervy and overstrained.'"

That is a miniature composite picture of the Great Third Reich as it looks today, ready to drop into the grave the Fuehrer has dug for it.
